Good that you want competitive solicitations.

However, the recommendations make it clear that more planning has to be done before you issue solicitations. Recommendation 1. is to issue solicitations for new Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP.) But Recommendation 2. is to do a cost feasibility study.

The Board letter mentions costs of $40 mil per average ERP upgrade and then $55 mil. That's a big difference. So if you are unsure of what you can afford, it is not a good idea to plunge ahead with the solicitations.

We have several years before the upgrades are necessary, so my suggestion would be to take 1 or 2 months to get the real cost down and then issue the solicitations with a more realistic cost basis.
