The Regional Housing Needs report says that the goal was to build 1,824 housing units for very low-income people, of which 24% have been built but the other categories, low to above moderate, all had 99% or higher built. Higher rent, and no way to solve the affordability crisis. Very discriminatory.

And yes, there is something YOU could do-create faster, cheaper housing. You should embrace less costly housing – 3D printed houses, tiny houses, shipping crate houses, adobe houses. And if you build homes that don't take as long to build, it will be easier to build the number of units actually needed, so you won't get stuck with unfinished houses when the crises end.

Also, limit rent increases in an emergency as long as the emergency lasts, and insist on a larger proportion of affordable housing.

And asking SANDAG for grant money is highly unlikely to pan out.

So unsteady progress and you're asking the wrong people for money help. Let's rely more on what we can do as a County.
