This government body is not efficient in any effort to address homelessness. The majority of people living on the streets are those with addictions and or with mental health issues. These people must be told to make a decision to get off the street or move along. If there is a place for them - great. But that place cannot be an imposition onto the local residents who have established their lives and their families. And they should not ever be forced to live in fear as to who the government is moving into their neighborhood.

Board letter says the Willow RV Park was to provide 17 RV parking spaces and onsite case management and rehousing services for the homeless but was put on hold. Why – is it still needed, or what?

To me, it is very important, if you're delaying or axing programs, to get community opinions. None are given. I know most of Lemon Grove is opposed to the project. Don't know who else actually cares about the people in the affected areas.

It also says that The Troy Street Sleeping Cabins project is expected to establish 60 cabins that will serve an estimated 140 individuals annually. This program will provide full wraparound services onsite, including case management, housing navigation, transportation, connections to social service programs, meals, hygiene facilities and more. Apparently, each cabin holds 2 people, for a total of 120 homeless, so this 20-person difference is hardly a turnover. Are you planning for an end to the crisis or mini-camps all over?
