Competitive Contract is the way to go. The concept is good - merge the functions of First 5, Kidstart, and Child and Family Well-Being (CFWB) into a new agency which does the same thing without having to divide resources among 3 programs.

Unfortunately, the recommendation is only to issue another contract and does not mention discontinuing the other programs.

And it is a shame the contracts are not attached. Government making it hard to get data (most of us don't have the time) is like government in secret.
