Off-agenda topic re: dept. Of animal services:

As a volunteer of DAS for 2 yrs, I can attest to the validity of the accusations which have been in the media: the swift decisions to carry out euthanasias on very minor behavioral/medical reasons and the high turnover, with the dismissal of staff and volunteers when they would try to bring about positive change. This is an organization whose aim should be to get animals adopted while protecting the community and it should be headed by compassionate individuals with experience. Ms. Borreli dismissed dogs and people like trash, told me personally she's not an "animal person' and how she became the assistant director from a volunteer coordinator without any experience running an animal shelter is astounding. I propose an experienced animal behaviorist along with the medical director (vet) making decisions of euthanasia. There should be more staffed animal care attendants (ACAs) to help with daily chores and to avoid burn out/turnover rates.
