In 1969 I lived in Santa Barbara and witnessed the devastation to local marine and land animals along with damage to the local beaches. It was devastating and heartbreaking, as evidenced by a multitude of photos and first hand observations.

I support the County taking action to Oppose offshore oil and gas drilling off the coast of California. Opening up our coastal waters to oil and gas drilling would be extremely environmentally damaging and would not benefit Californians. It does not even make long-term financial sense, as the deployment of solar or wind power plus battery storage is by far becoming the cheapest and fastest form of electricity generation. Please protect our coastal waters and promote investment in cheap and clean energy sources. Thank you.

I support A72. Offshore drilling only has the potential to degrade life in California and does not make sense financially, especially locally. Proponents claim that this will lower gas prices in California, but would it really? And if so, how much? If the average California driver saves $70 per year*, is that worth risking HUNDREDS of MILLIONS of DOLLARS in potential damage from an oil spill? Currently, all energy production causes pollution and damage to the environment, but fossil fuels are particularly efficient in this regard. *Estimates of cost savings were all over the place and included no savings at all, but one article which I could not re-locate in this timeframe est'd 20 cents per gal. savings after massive infrastructure costs associated with developing new rigs was included. Using average driving stats, this works out to about $70/yr savings. Environment

- Catastrophic Oil Spills: 1969 Santa Barbara
- Pollution: Drilling releases toxic "mud" containing benzene/arsenic into the ocean, contaminating waters where people surf/swim/fish/recreate

Economic

- Tourism & Fishing: Threatens multi-billion-dollar industries reliant on clean beaches/healthy marine life
- Hinders US innovation/leadership in massive renewable energy economy: Renewables offer abundant, domestically available, low-emission sources that reduce import reliance

National Security

- Interfere with Military Operations: Proposed drilling sites overlap with crucial military training areas, risking readiness and potentially interfering with testing of new weapons systems
- Perpetuates national security risks: reliance on fossil fuels with finite supply, price volatility, geopolitical dependence, climate impacts

Strategic

- Why new leases when a large percentage of current offshore leases are inactive? Drilling conflicts with CA laws banning new offshore drilling

I strongly support this resolution opposing leases for off-shore oil drilling off of our beautiful coastline. Thank you Chair Lawson Remer and Supervisor Aguirre for your leadership on this issue. The U.S. is the world's #1 exporter of oil. The cost of alternative energy sources like solar and wind are falling fast, and battery technologies are rapidly improving. Leave the oil in the earth for goodness sakes! Our precious ocean resources are too valuable to be put at risk!

In this time of extreme attempts at environmental deregulation, we commend the County's position to oppose offshore drilling. We strongly support any and all efforts to prevent new offshore drilling leases. Our time and efforts across our planet should be to collectively build infrastructure for renewable and distributed energy sources. Our survival for generations to come depends on our ability to reduce carbon emissions and re-stabilize our climate systems. One of the most important actions that we can take right now is to reduce our reliance on fossil fuel energy and leave oil in the ground. American energy independence will be achieved when we have highly diversified forms of renewable energy sources, not by risking destruction of marine ecosystems and contamination of our local environment. Please continue to be a strong voice of clarity in this battle to protect our future.

I support the County taking action to STOP offshore oil drilling along California's coast. Offshore drilling threatens our communities, our climate, and the coastal ecosystems we depend on. We grew up in Santa Barbara and our beach experiences were always ruined by blobs of tar in the water and on the sand due to offshore drilling--besides how it was doing to the ocean directly.

The dangers of offshore drilling are well known and are exemplified by the 1960 Santa Barbara and Huntington Beach oil spill disasters. The United States does not need energy independence; we have been a net oil exporter since 2020, and hit an all-time high of domestic oil production in 2024. It is difficult to square this situation with a need to expand oil leases in the name of energy independence and urgency, especially when large tracts of already leased land remain undeveloped. What is certain, though, is that leases provide large oil and gas corporations with the leverage to deny access to their competitors, including renewable sources such as wind farms and other experimental ocean-based renewable technologies. There is no perceivable public benefit to expansion of these leases and great risk of harm and danger, especially to a sustainable and competitive national energy strategy and to vulnerable communities. I strongly oppose the expansion of these leases.

I support the resolution to oppose offshore oil drilling in Southern California Waters. Tourism is the 3rd economic driver in San Diego County. Visitors from around the world come to San Diego county to enjoy our 72 miles of beautiful coastline that is free from tar balls and offshore oil rigs. We do not need more drilling permits. I am a survivor of the 2003 Cedar Fire that devastated our county and particularly the Scripps Ranch community. I support the well-reasoned resolution against off-shore drilling for oil and mining the sea floor. We need to leave oil in the ground and not combust it into our atmosphere adding to the global carbon dioxide and methane loads that are a major contributor to climate change. Instead, we should encourage the development of off-shore wind farms and environmentally sensitive methods to store this energy.

I support the County in opposing offshore drilling and in taking action to protect California's coastal communities, economies, and ecosystems from offshore drilling. Offshore drilling poses countless environmental risks, significantly threatening our coastal ecosystems, climate, and communities. It is imperative that we protect California's coast, and to do so, we must oppose proposals for offshore oil and gas activities in our waters.

Also, it's important to note that the wording of this action and the position options ("oppose," "neutral," or "support") seem to have confused many commenters. Upon reading other comments, it is evident that many individuals who marked their position as "oppose" did so to express their position opposing offshore drilling, NOT their position on this agenda item; their comments show clear SUPPORT for the County's resolution opposing offshore drilling.

The county should do everything in their power to stop offshore oil drilling off our coasts. Offshore oil drilling not only threatens our marine life and coastal ecosystems, but our very own livelihoods. Our country already exports roughly 20% of the oil we produce domestically and around 90% of new energy coming onto the grid is from carbon free sources. New oil drilling of any kind is clearly not needed, but as one of the most dangerous and risky forms of drilling, offshore drilling on our coasts should never be considered.

Strongly support the County in opposing any action related to offshore drilling or touching any of our coastal assets. Regardless of political affiliation, offshore drilling will harm all of Southern CA in the long-term and hurt our sensitive marine ecosystems. Just look to our neighbors north in Central CA along the Santa Barbara Channel or to Southern States on the Gulf — is this the coastline we want?

Also, this action is worded confusingly. Please refer to the many comments that selected the "oppose" position. They selected "oppose" thinking it was a position to oppose to offshore drilling (and not the resolution). It's obvious from their comments that many of these voters support the County's resolution to oppose any off-shore drilling.

I support the county taking action to stop oil drilling off the California coast. As a country and county we need to move away from oil which is the main cause of the extreme weather conditions we are currently experiencing around the world. We, San Diegan's need to play our part in saving our planet, state, country and citizens from extracting pollution from the oceans which could very well pollute our oceans and beaches affecting tourism and the very pleasures we feel while enjoying our natural beach resources. I remember our last oil spill, you couldn't walk on the beach without spending time cleaning the oil from the bottom of your feet! Let's learn from history and stop this madness from happening. I am writing to urge you to take a firm and public stand against any proposals for offshore oil and gas drilling in Southern California's waters. Our coastline, climate, and communities are far too valuable.

We cannot forget the devastating 1969 Santa Barbara Oil Spill, which killed thousands of animals, polluted our iconic beaches, and transformed California's environmental landscape. That disaster stands as a warning of what is at stake.

San Diego County depends on a healthy ocean for our tourism economy. Protecting the coast is not optional—it is your responsibility. We expect our elected leaders to prioritize public safety, environmental protection, and a sustainable future.

I strongly urge you to oppose any effort to expand offshore drilling and to actively support policies that safeguard our ocean, accelerate clean-energy solutions, and protect our communities.

Please oppose oil drilling off San Diego shores. 1) We May need an offshore desalination facility for more water for our growing population and due to climate change and Colorado River shortage. 2) As a teen at the beach by Long Beach the sticky tar from oil wells would get on our feet and skin __. 3) The pollution from these would harm marine ecology and the pollution I think would render locally caught sea food harmful to eat.

Please consider this idea: Don't oppose it- use the art of the deal for San Diego's benefit! If you truly want to protect our coastline, trade the offshore drilling for Trump to agree to fund a treatment plant to clean up the Tijuana sewage problem once and for all. I get it that you love our coastline, as do I, but not all Trump ideas are bad just because they come from Trump. Why don't you try working with him, negotiate a deal where San Diego gets Federal money for the sewage treatment, and in return we let the offshore oil happen- and don't worry so much, spend some time looking at facts and real data on oil accident risks and you might feel better about letting it happen - it would provide some nice high salary jobs for us with oil companies and the risk of coastal damage is lower than the risk that sewage has been causing! You would look great to the Republican voters-and you would look like heroes to Democrat voters for saving our beaches and our health from the sewage.

Good. I'm glad to see the resolution includes a ban on oil rigs in all California waters. Again, it effectively extends the Board's jurisdiction by urging a ban on offshore oil rigs in all US waters. We need fishing and not to see these things or experience oil spills that are hard to control or move to areas which might be sensitive.

And toxic substances released or a byproduct of the oil industry, like asthma, cancer, and plastics, are wreaking havoc on health and the environment. But cleanup is easier on land-based systems, when needed. We do not need the added complications of an ocean cleanup.

As a California resident working in ocean conservation, I strongly support your resolution opposing new offshore drilling along our coast. Reopening our waters to drilling—without meaningful community input—puts too much at risk. Past disasters like the Santa Barbara and Huntington Beach spills showed how quickly oil can devastate marine life, coastal habitats, and local economies.

San Diego has spent years moving toward a cleaner, more resilient future. Expanding offshore drilling undermines that progress and threatens the industries that depend on a healthy ocean, from tourism to commercial and recreational fishing. It also worsens the climate and air-quality impacts already felt by vulnerable communities.

Our coastline is one of our region's greatest assets, and protecting it is essential for our environment, our economy, and our health. I urge the Board to adopt this resolution and continue standing up for the wellbeing of our coast and communities.

San Diego has spent years building a cleaner, safer, more resilient energy future. Every day, our region moves forward in adopting sustainable, clean energy practices and further away from the fossil fuels that endanger our health and coastline. We refuse to go backward.

What is at risk?

Our Economy: Southern California's multi-billion dollar coastal tourism and fishing industries, which support thousands of jobs, are immediately jeopardized by the inevitable threat of a spill.

Our Environment: We risk devastating our iconic beaches, wildlife sanctuaries, and unique marine ecosystems.

Our Health: Continued reliance on fossil fuels degrades our air quality and contributes to the climate crisis that disproportionately impacts our most vulnerable communities.

San Diego Coastkeeper strongly supports this resolution. The federal government's reckless proposal to open new oil leases off California's coasts for the first time in forty years flies in the face of overwhelming, bipartisan opposition to such leases. Offshore drilling is devastating to marine ecosystems, dangerous to coastal economies, and costly for taxpayers, all while big oil stands to profit from our losses. This is an intrinsically dangerous industry with a long record of catastrophic failures.

Furthermore, humanity must immediately and dramatically cut its use of fossil fuels as our home planet cannot withstand any further warming. Climate change is already wreaking havoc on San Diego County in many forms including extreme heat, more intense fires, heavier rainstorms and flooding, sea level rise, threats to water supplies, algal blooms and ocean acidification, and a wide array of threats and pressures to our local ecosystems.

The Trump administration has announced a plan to open up California's coast for offshore oil drilling. They made this decision without holding a single public hearing. Coastal communities get no say, no answers, and no accountability from the people pushing to drill off our shoreline.
It is not long ago that California and our nation was forever changed by the 1969 Santa Barbara Oil Spill that saw 4.2 million gallons of crude oil released into the Santa Barbara Channel. Thousands of seabirds, sealions, and dolphins were killed, and tens of miles of California's coastline were left stained by oil sludge. This oil spill galvanized California and was a catalyst for the environmental movement that we know today. I strongly oppose all offshore oil drilling in the waters off Southern California or the United States in general.

Drilling for oil offshore southern California is unnecessary; there is enough unused oil extraction capacity in the USA, unused because it is uneconomical to pump out oil when the price goes below about $60/barrel. Current price is about $60 and Trump wants prices to go to $50.

Offshore drilling is also more expensive than on land, say in Texas or Oklahoma.

Offshore drilling and extraction poses a substantial risk of leaks, as well as catastrophic accidents such as the Deepwater Horizon spill which caused damage to marine life, and the fishing and tourism industry. Clean-up took years.

I remember walking along Atlantic beaches in the 70s and having my feet soiled by tar balls, a result of oil spills; I don't want that in San Diego, or the LA area or any of the US West Coast.

The proposal to renew offshore drilling along California is designed to punish California was giving Trump the finger, not out of necessity.

Our coastline is the heart of our local economy and our way of life. One major spill would devastate our beaches, marine life, tourism, and fishing industries for years, while doing almost nothing to meaningfully lower energy costs.

The US and particularly the California coast is an unnecessary target for oil drilling. The US is already energy independent without these new oil targets. There is an oversupply of oil already in the market making every new drop less valuable. Compare that with the hazards of offshore coastline drilling to wildlife, people, and industry (hospitality, bio, and efforts like desalination). We must protect our dearest resource (environment) from a low value drilling.

I support the resolution to oppose offshore oil drilling in California. I'm a little unclear on which position means what due to the other comments, which all oppose offshore oil-drilling, but some say support in reference to the resolution. So just to be super clear, I OPPOSE any more off-shore oil drilling in California! I'm glad we have community members and representatives willing to stand up to the "person" running roughshod over us. Beyond the fact that there was no public oversight (which is completely inappropriate), can we really trust anyone he sells out to to do things safely and properly? Santa Barbara was one thing, but I haven't forgotten BP either.

I oppose oil drilling off the coast of CA. The United States is drilling more oil now than it ever has. There is no shortage and there is no concern that there will be. There is no reason to endanger our coastlines, sea life, and recreation and tourism because a politician, who has no understanding of environmental issues, should be making hurtful policies just because he feels like it. They need to have the public meetings, do the oversight and get the environmental reports before they even think of moving forward.

Lived in Santa Barbara during the Oil Spill there and later, in College, produced a video of the experts and workers involved in the clean up which aired on the local cable TV. Would hate to see a repeat of this occurrence. The beaches and aquatic life did not recover for years.

I strongly support the Board adopting a resolution in opposition to off shore drilling which will help support our environment and local economy. This plan creates a predictable crisis with devastating resultant harm to all county residents. Please act now. This is urgent.

As a California resident and human being on this earth I vehemently OPPOSE any offshore drilling off the coast of California. Our planet is quickly dying and we need to focus on leaving the fossil fuel industry in the dust where it belongs. The damage to human, animal and ocean life will be devastating if this is allowed to continue

As a 4th generation Californian who grew up at the California beach, I firmly oppose any new drilling off our coastline. There is no shortage of oil from existing sources and no need to risk adding new sites.

Hello Terra!

As a native Californian, I oppose any kind of drilling off of the California coast for the very reasons you mentioned in your communication. Years ago, the town of Avila Beach had to be rebuilt because oil from the tankers above Murdock Landing had leached into the ground causing all kinds of chaos.

As an American citizen, who did not vote for the insanity that we see, read, and hear about every day, I am tired of this lousy administration making decisions without any input from the experts who better understand the long term consequences of their narrow-minded actions and decisions.

I realize that these are only words on a page; however, I hope that these same words help prevent an action that would be detrimental to our beautiful California coastline and potentially cause damage to the already fragile ecosystems along our coastline.

Thank you for allowing me this opportunity to share my thoughts.

Make it a GREAT day!

Trump can try to fast-track drilling, silence communities, and call climate change a "con job." But this resolution makes clear we won't stand for it. We will defend our beaches, our economy, and our future.
