Despite years of efforts to address the homelessness crisis in San Diego County, the number of individuals experiencing homelessness continues to rise. Current strategies are failing to produce meaningful results. County's reliance on federal funding to address housing affordability and homelessness is unsustainable. I urge the County to consider best practices from other industrialized countries and Western Europe, where homelessness has been effectively addressed. One such practice is the allocation of 1% of all living spaces in new construction projects to the public domain. This is achieved by requiring developers to contribute 1% of the total living spaces (or one apartment per building if 1% equals less than one unit) as a condition of receiving a construction permit. This approach ensures a steady and dispersed stock of public housing throughout the County, avoiding the mistakes of the past where concentrated public housing led to neighborhoods and pockets of poverty.

I am concerned that public comments submitted to previous plans, including my own, were neither acknowledged nor reflected in final reports. This lack of transparency undermines trust in the County's commitment to public engagement.

I urge the County to ensure all comments for the FY 2025-29 Plan are reported and addressed in the final document. Transparency is essential to maintaining public trust.

Thank you.
